Asian Content for the World's Children

We are back – having achieved a record participation of 400 delegates from 17 countries and more than 300 members of the public at the Asian Festival of Children's Content (AFCC) in May 2010.

Once again from 26 to– 29 May 2011, experts from around the world will debate, discuss, and chart new ways on how Asian content can be developed and presented both in print and the new media to the children of the world.

AFCC 2011 will be of special interest to writers, illustrators, publishers, editors, literary agents, technology experts, teachers, librarians and children's TV and film producers in Asia and in other parts of the world.
